

Accepted Institutions for MOI Letters – The University of Law

- Applicants from the below list of institutions may provide Medium of Instruction (MOI) letters as proof of English language ability, in place of obtaining a Secure English Language Test (SELT) requirement or other equivalent.
- These MOI qualifications will be considered as proof of English for Business and Computer Science courses only.
- There will be a 5 year expiration date applied, which will be calculated from the date the degree was awarded on the official transcript to the start date of the course applied for.

In order to utilise this alternative route to proving English language ability, we will require one of the following:

- An official transcript from the institution stating clearly that the medium of instruction is English;
- An official letter from the institution with the student's full name, student ID number, date of birth, degree qualification and title, year awarded, stating clearly that the award was taught and assessed in English. We expect to see this letter to be on official institution letterhead and this must be signed and stamped by both the institution and you as our agent to validate the letter as an authentic document.

The list is subject to further revisions.
